Teacher explores wilderness

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

A Romulus school teacher will become a student this summer during a two-week program taught in the wilds of Montana.

William Thomas is an outdoor education instructor for Romulus Junior High School. He is also a recent scholarship recipient of the Safari Club International Education Foundation.

Thomas will be backpacking in the Rockies, white-water rafting along the Snake River and camping in the wilderness as part of the educational experience. Discussions will cover wildlife ecology, resource management, survival, hunter safety and outdoor ethics.

"It's pretty much what I teach in school but more concentrated," Thomas said.

Thomas will be part of a 40-member group of teachers.

He decided to apply for the program when he saw a Safari Club display at an outdoor living convention.

Now Thomas is preparing for the adventure. During the past week, Thomas has spent his mornings "hiking" in his New Boston neighborhood carrying a backpack loaded with oats. He has also stockpiled rations of dehydrated, high-energy food packets. However, he laughed, he wishes the dried pork chops came with instructions.

One adjustment Thomas will have to make for the trip is mountain weather. Participants are advised to bring along a down jacket as temperatures in the Rockies drop below zero degrees at night.

This will be the first visit to the Rockies for Thomas, who has been an outdoorsman for most of his life. A native of southeast Pennsylvania, Thomas is an active member of several preservation groups.

Thomas and his wife share their home with an assortment of wildlife, including several types of pheasants, quail, a goose and four cats.

Thomas will leave for his journey July 24.

Outdoor life has always intrigued Romulus teacher William Thomas (above), who lives with an assortment of animals ranging from cats to geese. Later this month, the junior high school instructor will become completely immersed in nature during a two-week educational program in the wilds of Montana. Thomas will be hiking, white-water rafting and exploring. This will be Thomas' first trip to the West. He is attending the program through a scholarship program for educators. Along with his backpack, Thomas plans to take along his dulcimer (left). ANP photos by Werner Stocurv/staff photographer

Court overturns slaying conviction

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

The man convicted in the 1986 stabbing death of a Romulus high school student is expected to be released soon.

The Michigan Supreme Court affirmed a recent appeals decision reversing the manslaughter conviction of Darryl Johnson. The decision was handed down July 12.

Johnson had been sentenced to eight to 15 years in prison for the stabbing death of Robert O'Day.

Although the Michigan Court of Appeals unanimously reversed the manslaughter charges in December 1988, Johnson was required to remain in jail as the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office applied for another reversal before the Michigan Supreme Court.

The conviction was overturned on the basis that the judge hearing the original case made prejudicial remarks about the defense counsel in front of the jury, thus denying Johnson a fair trial.

Tension existed between the judge and defense attorney during the trial, according to court reports. On the fifth day of proceedings, the defense attorney was found in contempt of court.

The prosecutor handling the appeal, Olga Agnello, stated that the trial judge conducted a fair hearing of the case.

Attorney Frank Frontczak represented Johnson during the appeal.

The stabbing followed a dispute between two Romulus high school students in February 1986. Johnson's cousin, Lewis McMullen, had reportedly been harassed at school and Johnson came to school the following day to settle the argument, according to court reports.

A confrontation reportedly broke out among Johnson and a companion and members of the wrestling team. During the fight, O'Day was stabbed in the chest with a five-inch folding knife, reports cited. The cause of death was listed as a single stab wound to the heart.

Johnson became a suspect in the case shortly after the stabbing.

A civil lawsuit was filed by O'Day's parents against Romulus Community Schools. That case will be heard in November. O'Day's parents claim Johnson and his friends, who were not Romulus students, should not have been able to gain entry into the high school.

High school is placed on probation

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

A shortage of library staff members has threatened the accreditation of Romulus Senior High School.

The school has been placed on probationary status for the upcoming school year by officials of The University of Michigan Accreditation Advisory Committee.

Members of the accreditation committee have requested that another librarian be hired for the high school, according to Superintendent William Bedell.

"For the last five years they've sent me warnings. This time they put us on probation," Bedell said.

The school currently has one librarian and one aide. The size of the school, according to accreditation standards, demands additional personnel for the library.

The nature of the violation is not serious, Bedell said.

"It's not uncommon. They look at all phases of operation," he added.

A complete explanation of the steps that will be taken to meet their demands will be due in October.

Bedell will talk with members of the board of education about possible for alternatives for meeting the accreditation criteria. He said he hopes a compromise will be acceptable by the committee.

Assault suspect is hospitalized

A Romulus man was taken into custody and charged with assault after struggling with a Romulus police officer Friday afternoon.

William Effie Powell, 32, was arraigned from his bed at the Westland Medical Center Monday morning by Judge William Szilinis. Powell was shot in the hand during the struggle.

Powell was charged with assault with intent to do great bodily harm. Bond was set at $25,000, and Powell remains in the custody of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department until his July 26 preliminary hearing.

Police officers were investigating a suspicious vehicle on Venoy, south of Ecorse, at approximately 5 p.m. Friday, according to police officials. The car with three people inside was traveling slowly through an isolated area, officials said.

As a second police car arrived on the scene to provide assistance, a passenger of the vehicle fled on foot, police said. The original officer on the scene followed.

When the officer caught up to the man, a struggle began, officers said. Ultimately, police officials said, the suspect was shot in the hand.

The name of the police officer involved in this case has not been released.

The other two occupants of the vehicle were released Friday.

Meanwhile, Powell could face up to 10 years in jail or a $5,000 fine for his charge.

Wild ducklings endangered

By JOAN MARY DYER
Belleville City Editor

A family of mallard ducks have survived threats from their natural enemies - rats, snakes, raccoons and opossums - but they may not survive the actions of thoughtless neighborhood children.

Since mid-May, Ken Clelland of Orchard Street in Romulus, has assumed the role of guardian to a female mallard duck. First, he intervened so that city work crews would not mow down the high grass where the duck made her nest. Then, after he discovered that she had produced eight eggs, Clelland attempted to protect the hen and her eggs from harm.

Clelland, who has studied forestry and wildlife management, is a hunter and guide, and describes himself as "an avid sportsman and conservationist."

"Unfortunately, after I found the eggs, so did some neighborhood kids, who destroyed all but three of the eggs," Clelland said. "One kid told me that another youngster had thrown duck eggs on the road. I talked to the boy and tried to explain how wrong it was for him to destroy those eggs."

Clelland said he has shared some of the wildlife books in his library with the neighborhood youngsters in an attempt to instill a love and respect of nature in them. He realizes that the children's actions are the result of lack of knowledge about the environment, and believes the only real help would be in the education of children in their classrooms.

"I really feel frustrated. Now, there are only three of the little ducks left, and the kids are trying to carry them away from their nest. I've called the Department of Natural Resources and a lot of other agencies to try to get help, but so far, I haven't been successful," Clelland said. "The ducks are protected by a migratory bird law against hunters, but there doesn't seem to be anything done to protect the birds from malicious destruction."

Clelland would like to move the ducks to a more protected area, but says he is blocked by laws which prohibit him from moving the birds.

"I know that the DNR doesn't have the funds to be everywhere that they want to be and to do everything that they need to do," Clelland said. "That's why I think there should be some way to give assistance to those of us who are trying to protect nature and the environment."

If nothing else, Clelland said, we need to find a way to teach children about nature.

ROMULUS NEWS DIGEST

Election petition deadline nears

Those interested in becoming candidates in the Romulus city election this November must file petitions soon.

Petitions must be submitted to the clerk's office in city hall by 4 p.m. July 25. Petitions must contain at least 100 signatures from registered Romulus voters.

Potential candidates are advised to obtain at least 125 signatures as a form of protection. Signatures that cannot be read or certified will be disregarded.

All seven city council posts and the positions of mayor, treasurer and clerk will appear on the November ballot.

Most of the incumbents have begun circulating petitions, and several petitions have been submitted to the clerk's office.

A primary election will be staged Sept. 12 if more than two times the candidates file than there are seats available. For example, three candidates must file for the mayor's post in order for a primary to be staged. At least 15 people must petition for council to merit a primary election.

For more information about filing deadlines, call the city clerk's office at 942-7540.

Theft reported at local house

A Romulus house on the 27000 block of Wick Road was broken into July 12 and $500 in lost property and damages were reported.

The suspect gained entry to the house by breaking a window in the door, according to police officials.

Taken from the home was a color mandolin, color television and cassette tape player.

Woman arrested for helping escapee

An Inkster woman wanted in Ohio for aiding and abetting an escape from prison was arrested in Romulus Friday.

Police authorities from Perrysburg, Ohio, had been searching for the 23-year-old woman.

Artists sought for local fair

Applications are still available for the Romulus Art Council Annual Arts and Crafts Fair.

The event will be staged Sept. 16 on the grass area near the Romulus Public Library on Wayne Road.

Local fundraiser event nears

Members of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People for Western Wayne County will stage a fund-raising event in Romulus this September.

A Freedom Fund dinner will be staged at 6 p.m., Sept. 24 at the Airport Hilton. Tickets will be $40.

Arthur Carter, Wayne County commissioner, will be a guest speaker at the event.

For more information, call 729-8812 or 721-5508.

Burn victim has setback

Approximately one month after Kristen Grauman was splashed with gasoline and set on fire, the Taylor woman remains in critical condition at the University of Michigan Burn Center in Ann Arbor.

Romulus police have not been able to speak with the 19-year-old, who is believed to know who attacked her June 24.

Apparently Grauman is battling an infection believed to be a result of the dirty water she jumped in to extinguish the flames covering her body.

Correction

A July 13 article about the attempt to place street lights along a section of Cypress Street should have stated a public hearing regarding assessments for the project will be staged Aug. 14.

Hotel strip gains additions

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

The "hotel strip" near Detroit Metropolitan Airport has gained two luxury hotels so far this year. The newest marked its debut July 13.

The Pickett Suite Inn, on Wickham Road, staged grand-opening ceremonies marking the first Pickett property to open in Michigan.

"This should be a very strong market for us. Business in Detroit is thriving, and we feel the traveler deserves more upscale and spacious accommodations. We are also proud to be the only all-suite property in the area," James Pickett, chairman of the Pickett Hotel Company, said.

"We're anxious to become part of this community," he said.

Tom Hagreen, general manager of the new inn, described some of the "extras" offered to guests. The 151 suites include stocked refrigerators, coffee makers, built-in hair dryers, two remote-control televisions, two telephones and a separate dressing area. A single suite costs $99. A double costs $114. Super suites, which contain conference facilities, cost $150.

Additional hotel features include an indoor/outdoor swimming pool, exercise room, cafe, conference suites, meeting and banquet facilities and a guest laundry.

New employees of the inn undergo strict training using a computerized simulator to test employees, Hagreen said.

The Pickett will target two markets - the business traveler during the week and couples on the weekend.

Proximity to the airport was a big selling point for Pickett developers, Hagreen said. The airport, Hagreen predicts, will attract even more development within the next 10 years, thus creating more business for local hotels.

"I think this area with the airport will continue to grow. You are seeing new industries come in," Hagreen said.

The second new hotel to open in Romulus this year is the Radisson Hotel.

After nearly two years of planning and construction, the luxury facility opened April 6.

Jeff Fazio, general manager, acknowledged the continuous development of hotels near the airport, but predicted success for the Radisson.

"It's definitely hotel row. There are over 3,000 sleeping rooms in this area," Fazio said. "We're not in direct competition with the other hotels. We're going after the meetings and the banquets."

Fazio compared the Radisson to hotels in other communities such as the Dearborn Hyatt Regency and the Novi Hilton. "We can book the large organizations," he said.

The hotel, however, is also able to attract business travelers making quick stops in the "Motor City."

"The business person wants to be closer to the airport... Then they don't have to worry about traffic. It's just a convenience," Fazio said.

At this point, meeting facilities within the Radisson are doing somewhat better than the overnight facilities. On the average, the hotel has a 40-percent occupancy rate, according to Fazio. Although that figure indicates room for improvement, not to mention more guests, it has been increasing steadily since the hotel opened, Fazio said. A room at the Radisson costs $79 to $99 per night.

Actually, Fazio said, Romulus illustrates the national picture for the hotel industry - overcrowding.

"Most areas are overbuilt. There's more supply than demand," he said.

Because of the hotel glut in Detroit, obtaining financing for a hotel development is becoming increasingly difficult, he said.

"The difference for me will be the people who work for me... You have to provide a staff that enjoys their work," Fazio said.

The two newest hotels in Romulus are fashioned with luxurious accommodations. The Pickett Inn Suite officially opened July 13 with an elaborate grand opening gala. Guests were tempted by several food displays throughout the lobby and hotel dell (left). To officiate the event, Mayor Beverly McNally (right) joined James Pickett, for a ribbon-cutting ceremony. Also new this year, the Radisson Hotel boasts a spacious lobby and unique design which takes advantage of outdoor light. Many guests take advantage of dining facilities (above) in the center of the main floor of the hotel. ANP photos by Werner Slocum/staff photographer

Cable volunteers are needed

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

The new cable station for Romulus may be a benefit, but actual programming efforts will require the hard work of volunteers, according to Oliver Warren, a coordinator for Romulus cable television.

Warren has lofty goals for the new community access channel, as well as the existing government channel.

Warren wants to initiate a local news program for the government station which would feature profiles of city officials and employees. This would require narrators, interviewers and people to help with production.

"We want the city to know what our government is doing," Warren said.

Free classes are offered regularly through Omnicom Cablevision, Warren said, to provide volunteers with basic guidelines for operating cable equipment.

Another possible program would focus on school athletics, Warren said.

Volunteers will also be needed to get the community access channel off the ground, Warren said.

"I would like to get just a regular television system going," he said.

Cable commission members announced equipment is currently being purchased for the new station. Editing devices, cameras and recorders will be needed.

Members of the cable commission have voiced their opposition to the development of cable programming through telephone companies. Telephone companies would not be subject to city ordinances or programming policies.

"The community flavor of cable television would disappear," commission member Mark Woodworth said.

The Romulus Cable Commission meets at 7:30 p.m. on the second Tuesday of every month. Meetings are open to the public.

Those interested in volunteering at the cable channels can call Oliver at 729-5899 or 942-7571, extension 570.

Romulus participates in summer junior olympics

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

A team of 48 Romulus youngsters will participate in an event of "olympic" proportions later this month.

Tryouts for the Detroit Metropolitan Youth Fitness Meet were staged at North Junior High School this week. Members selected for the team will compete beginning at 9 a.m. July 27 at the Lower Huron Metropark, in Van Buren Township.

The youngsters will compete in the 50-, 60- and 75-yard dash, the softball throw, an agility run and chin-ups.

Boys and girls will be divided into three classes - 13- and 14-year-olds, 11- and 12-year-olds and 9- and 10-year-olds.

"It's really a unique program," Tom Byrd, of the Romulus Recreation Center, said. "Almost 2,000 kids will be there."

This will be the 32nd year for the meet. Romulus will be one of 42 participating communities.

Each participant will wear a uniform representing their community and will march under a team banner during a parade to kick off the event, Byrd said.

In addition, the young athletes will meet former Detroit Lions cornerback, Len Barney, who will lead an exercise session before the field events.

Additional highlights of the event include torch lighting and awards ceremonies.

Byrd is encouraging Romulus residents to attend the event and cheer on the team. For more information, call the recreation department at 942-6852.

Humane Society plan delayed

The opening of the new Michigan Humane Society Animal Shelter, on Marquette Road, in Westland, has been delayed because of financial problems.

The planned $2.5 million shelter, scheduled to be completed by the end of this year, will not open until 1991, according to shelter Manager Sue Yates.

The new shelter is to be built behind the existing shelter. The shelter design is similar to that of the new animal hospital, located near the shelter.

The old animal shelter will remain in use until the new shelter is completed, Yates said.

The shelter is being replaced because of lack of space, outdated equipment and poor ventilation. Once a disease-afflicted animal is brought to the shelter, the disease spreads quickly to other animals because of the poor ventilation. The problem is especially prevalent during the summer months, Yates said.

The new shelter will include classroom facilities and a small theater, where Humane Society personnel can work to better educate the public about animals and their care.

Additional facilities will also be available for animals.

The facility — as are most Humane Society projects — is being funded with donations from the public. Because donations have been less than earlier projected, work on the new facility had to be delayed, Yates said.

Solid waste: Changes are eyed for county 'master plan'

By JOAN MARY DYER
Belleville City Editor

Several new proposals have been presented for inclusion in the Wayne County Solid Waste Management Plan, and the draft appears to be far from ready for final approval. The updated plan was presented to the Wayne County Solid Waste Implementation Committee for consideration and possible adoption at the May 22 meeting, and again on July 17.

Not only was agreement on the plan not possible at the Monday meeting, but - due to lack of a quorum - the WCSWIC meeting was changed to committee meeting of the whole, and no date was set for the next committee gathering.

James Murray, director of the county Department of Public Works, presented four additions to the waste management draft at the committee meeting. Murray proposed drop-off centers for recycling in all municipalities by Jan. 1, 1992. Each site would serve not more than 125,000 people - a number that would encourage small communities to join with neighboring cities and townships to develop joint recycling efforts, Murray said.

Murray also proposed that all municipalities submit reduction feasibility studies, and the DPW prepare solid waste plan feasibility studies for industrial and commercial businesses by July 1, 1992. Finally, Murray proposed that a countywide strategy plan be developed by Jan. 1, 1993.

After reviewing steps which must be taken by municipalities electing to reduce their solid waste volume by recycling and composting, several area representatives in the audience complained that the requirements tended to penalize recycling.

Van Buren Township waste management director Ed Delhagen told the WCSWIC members that the proposed requirements "will punish those who choose to recycle and compost."

The proposal lists twelve steps for communities who choose to reduce their solid waste (by 75 percent) with recycling and composting programs. The steps begin with a requirement to adopt a resolution stating compliance by Jan. 1, 1994, or the municipality will contract or build its own incinerator if the recycling is not achieved. Next, work plans must be submitted, the strategy implemented and a report made on the recycling goal. If the recycling compliance is not attained in 1994, the communities must identify potential incinerator sites and file a work plan for incineration.

Delhagen also asked the committee to establish a realistic and attainable goal for waste reduction, not one that will discourage the communities.

WCSWIC chairman Milton Mack offered a proposal to achieve a 40 percent reduction of residential wastes through recycling and composting by 1992, and to explore implementation of further reduction requirements to achieve 50 percent reduction of the entire waste stream by 2000.

Van Buren Township Trustee Diane Melvin called the proposed waste management plan "a magic wand plan," and criticized the aspects of the plan which would allow the exportation, burning and dumping of solid wastes, rather than vigorously promoting recycling and composting.

Local leaders are proposing a few changes of their own

By BARBARA WILSON
ANP News Editor

Several local governmental leaders have their own ideas about changes to the Wayne County Solid Waste Plan. Those leaders attended the monthly meeting of the Conference of Western Wayne Friday and approved a resolution calling for amendments to the solid-waste plan being considered by Wayne County commissioners. The CWW is a 17-community governmental planning organization attended by at least one representative of each western Wayne County community.

In their resolution, CWW members asked that a requirement in the county solid-waste plan for local communities to reduce by the year 2000 residential solid wastes by 75 percent be amended to 50 percent. The waste reduction will stem from a change from the traditional method of disposing of garbage - landfills - to recycling, composting and incineration.

"We would have been left with some communities turning to incineration, which they wouldn't be happy with," said Maurice Breen, Plymouth Township supervisor.

A 75-percent reduction of residential solid waste seemed too lofty of a goal to be practical, according to CWW officials.

The CWW resolution offers an alternative to that amendment, by proposing that, if the 75-percent level is desired by county officials, the solid-waste plan should require a 75-percent waste reduction for all waste producers - including the commercial and industrial sectors.

The current county 75-percent reduction requirement targets only the residential community.

In addition, CWW representatives requested that county officials provide the information necessary to make the objectives of the solid-waste plan successful.

Information requested includes waste categories, volumes and percentages of solid waste, uniform measurements and current waste-disposal costs as of 1989.

In an effort to plan for the anticipated change in the way local residents dispose of their household waste, CWW officials have hired Sandy Altschul to coordinate local solid-waste programs. A CWW committee will soon be established to consider all possible methods for complying with the county solid-waste plan.

Representatives of each of the communities, a financial expert and a sanitation or environmental engineer will be asked to serve on the committee, CWW officials said.

The goals of the committee will include applying for state and federal grants, developing projects in which all CWW members can participate regarding composting and recycling and developing working relationships with programs in surrounding areas that can enhance the projects of the CWW.

It will be part of Altschul's job to follow the progress of other counties in the area of solid-waste reduction and to fine successful programs to use as guidelines for western Wayne County.

"Late in June, we began surveying surrounding counties to see their status with their solid-waste updates," Altschul reported. "We are beginning a survey of our communities to understand what is being done within the CWW, so we can provide information that will reduce unnecessary duplication of resources."

CWW officials will also apply for a state Department of Natural Resources grant to finance a proposed recycling program for all communities of the CWW.

ACCELERATED JOB TRAINING PROGRAMS AT W.C.C.C.

Starting in mid-September, the Western Campus on Haggerty Rd. will be offering short term (one semester) training programs in:

- Computerized Bookkeeping
- Hotel Front Desk Service

These courses can lead to entry-level jobs which offer full benefits and starting wages of $5.50 to $7.00. Resume preparation and placement service are built into the programs. Financial Aid and Scholarships are available but must be applied for by early August. For more information call Educational Services at: 697-5192.

Countywide corrections program is eyed

By THOMAS M. VARCIE
ANP Staff Writer

The concept of a countywide community corrections program will be studied more carefully by a committee of local residents.

Members of the Wayne County Committee on Public Safety and Judiciary are expected to appoint selected county residents to a committee to investigate such a program, according to Ben Washburn, general counsel to the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

The consolidation of several state correctional programs is aimed at lawbreakers with minor offenses who participate in the program rather than going to prison, Washburn said.

Public Act 511 of 1988 states Michigan county authorities have three options for the state-funded correctional programs.

"The county can have its own program if the major city chooses not to have it, or the city (of Detroit) can have its own program, or the main city (Detroit) and the county can have a joint program," Washburn said.

Members of the Detroit City Council and county commissioners will appoint committee members to determine which plan will be most beneficial.

The committee selection process is not expected to begin until September, Washburn said.

In the meantime, however, Washburn said candidates for the special research committee can send resumes and ap plications to the Wayne County Building.

The state correctional program considered for implementation in the county is aimed at attempting to relieve prison overcrowding.

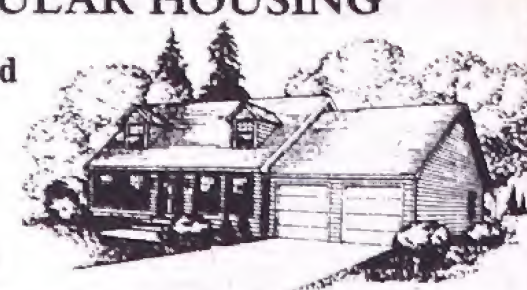

The program involves job training or intensive probation, including electronic tethering, which is extensive monitoring of an individual by electronic devices, Washburn said.

Judges in the Wayne County Recorder's Court will determine who participates.

Water safety is taught

Area boaters and water sports enthusiasts who want to upgrade their safety skills may attend a free boat safety seminar tonight (July 20) between 6 and 9 p.m. at the Moose Lodge, 831 E. Huron River Drive.

The class, taught by members of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department marine patrol, will focus on safe boating techniques and offer tips on safety to participants.

Pre-registration is not required, and the class is still open to those who have not attended the first session, which was conducted Monday night. Officers Larry Crider and Dave Desautels said that newcomers can be "brought up to date" on the course.

In addition to the classroom instruction, the officers also will provide free boat inspections to those who sail their boats to the Moose Lodge dock or bring their boats on trailers to the lodge parking lot. No tickets will be written for violations noted during the free inspections.

The safety classes will be an annual community service, said Bob Reed, civic affairs chairman of the Belleville Moose Lodge.

Weather can't dampen spirit of park-goers

By FLORENCE MECKS
ANP Staff Writer

The Wayne County parks are experiencing a healthy birthday summer, despite a soggy June, according to Vic Chaisson, Wayne County recreation manager.

Periods of heavy rains, such as those experienced during June, can prove to be a challenge for county park workers. Volleyball and softball league games had to be postponed due to rain and then rescheduled.

"We're bearing with the weather the best we can," Chaisson said.

A steady source of activity for the parks has been corporate picnics and family reunions. Between 30 and 35 picnics are scheduled for most weekends, Chaisson said. Picnics can range from small family groups to company affairs with 750 to 1,000 people.

Hines Park, in Westland, may host as many as 6,000 people in one weekend as a result of such picnics.

"I think the bread-and-butter of the parks are the picnics," Chaisson said.

Also successful is the "Saturday in the Park" program. Since May 6, six miles of the Middle Rouge Parkway, from the Warrendale picnic area to the Nankin Mills Station, have been closed to traffic allowing people to jog, walk or bicycle safely. The program will continue through Sept. 23.

Special events scheduled throughout the summer also bring people to the county park.

"We're Building Castles in the Sand" is an event initiated last year in which professional architectural firms build sand castles at the beach volleyball courts at Nankin Mill. The event, slated for July 30 this year, was a big success, Chaisson said.

Six firms will compete in the three-hour event.

"They come out with the blueprints and T-square and the whole shot," Chaisson said.

"It's an art."

The resulting structures vary from traditional castles to angular buildings with a more modern appearance.

"Everyone comes in with a different idea of what they're going to do," Chaisson said. "Watching them is fascinating."

Not to be outdone, children often bring their own shovels and pails to the event.

WINNERS CIRCLE

BY LAURIE KIPP

M&L

With the opportunity to become a Michigan Lottery Millionaire occurring in every twice-weekly Super Lotto drawing, readers asked for more information on winning.

Q. How many prizes of $1 million or more have been won in Michigan?

A. Through the end of June this year, there had been 352, with 39 of these prizes awarded to lottery clubs.

Q. How many of these were jackpot winners in a Lotto game?

A. There have been 365 Lotto jackpot winners. Of these, 284 received prizes ranging from $1 million up to $17 million.

Q. How many have been won this year?

A. Through the June 28 drawing, 28 prizes worth $1 million or more were won this year, or an average of about one a week. This is slightly ahead of the 1988 pace when 51 were awarded during the full year.

Q. How many Lotto jackpot prizes have been worth more than $10 million?

A. As of this writing there have been 10, with 45 others in the $5 million to $10 million range. The largest number of winners, 126, won prizes worth $2 to $5 million. Another 103 lucky players won between $1 million and $2 million.

Q. What determines the size of the jackpot for each drawing?

A. The top prize is based on the number of plays in the game since the jackpot was last won. When a rollover occurs, Lottery officials establish a new guaranteed minimum based on the amount already in the jackpot plus anticipated sales for the next game.

Q. How many plays does it take to add another $1 million?

A. About 2.2 million. From each dollar in Lotto game sales, 26 cents is placed in the jackpot prize pool for investment to pay a prize over 20 years. But, because winners collect this money plus all the interest it earns over that 20-year period, $1 million can be awarded with only about $550,000 in the prize pool.

Q. Are my odds of winning the jackpot better when it goes above a $1.5 million minimum?

A. Your odds of hitting the jackpot remain the same, about one in seven million, no matter how large the jackpot is. But, as larger jackpots attract more players, there is a greater chance that the top prize will be shared by two or more winners.

Q. How many times have there been multiple jackpot winners?

A. Through the end of June, the Super Lotto jackpot has been won 107 times with multiple winners in 37 drawings.

Q. Since the start of Lotto play in 1984, how many other prizes have been won in these games?

A. As of the end of June, 3,561,450, which includes more than 80,000 players who matched five numbers for awards worth up to $4,767. Winners matching four numbers have received prizes of up to $144.

Q. What is the total won in Lotto games in Michigan?

A. Counting the full value of jackpot prizes, this total is now past $1.38 billion.

For submitting the first question leading to this column, Suresh J. Patel of Taylor will receive 50 "Fame & Fortune" tickets. Note: When duplicate questions are received, that with the earliest date stamp upon arrival at Lottery Central wins. In case of a tie, the winner is selected by random drawing.

If you have a question not yet covered in these monthly columns, send it to: "Winners Circle," Michigan Lottery, P.O. Box 38077, Lansing, MI 48909.

are completed

Michigan Bell technicians have made repairs to the local enhanced 9-1-1 emergency telephone system, in an attempt to alleviate problems with lighting.

Police and fire officials in several communities, according to Joe Benyo, 9-1-1 coordinator, encountered minor problems with their systems during storms. Repairs, however, have been completed at each of the 9-1-1 sites.

An official amended plan for an enhanced 9-1-1 system which includes Detroit Metropolitan Airport, Taylor and Belleville will also be adopted soon, Benyo said.

Teachers, youth attend camp

A science camp, staged at Thorne Elementary School, in Dearborn Heights, was recently attended by 150 teachers and 400 students from several Wayne County schools.

Project AIMS - Activities that Integrate Mathematics and Science - is a program in which elementary teachers and students work on science and math techniques, strategies and lessons that can be integrated into daily curriculum.

The teachers learned new teaching techniques during the morning and then put the techniques to use with the students later in the day.

Law affects drain board

County drain commission boards will be formed under a new law to better serve the areas most affected by drains.

Public Act 134, sponsored by state Rep. Jim Kosteva (D-Canton Township), establishes a three-member Wayne County drain board to consist of an appointed drain commissioner, the county commissioner whose district in which the largest portion of the drain is located and a third person appointed by the county executive.

"The law allows for more representation of residents in the community where the drain most affects the land," Kosteva said.

Clarification

In the June 29 edition of Associated Newspapers, a story about the local abortion debate was unclear.

Romulus resident Sondra Stepchuk, organizer of Romulus Right to Life, said she accepts the efforts of Operation Rescue but does not approve the any attempts to bomb clinics where abortions are preformed.

PUERTO RICO

Escape to the small island ideally located between the Atlantic and the Caribbean... a land of endless beaches and clear waters! Puerto Rico offers summertime activities all year long. Head for this charming country if you crave a combination of excitement AND leisure.

If you are into the swim of things, many public beaches are available to visitors as well as numerous pools at the luxurious hotels and resorts. Thanks to the mild climate, blue and white marlin, tuna, sailfish and mackerel are just a few of the many fish in Puerto Rican waters.

Boating, surfing, and snorkeling are other water sports which can be enjoyed by young and old alike. Tennis, golfing, and riding facilities are located in various places on the island. Nightclubs, casinos, fine restaurants and many historical sights, including Old San Juan are places of interest to visit after the sun and surf activities.

Consider Puerto Rico when making your vacation plans... it's a land of perpetual summertime!

Enjoying Good Health

Dr. Kelly is associate director of Maternal-Fetal Medicine at Oakwood Hospital, Dearborn.

A synonym for perinatology is Maternal-Fetal Medicine, a subspecialty of Obstetrics and Gynecology.

WHAT MAKES A PREGNANCY
HIGH RISK?

Many medical conditions during pregnancy, or problems with the developing baby make the pregnancy at risk for a less than optimal outcome.

Sometimes the only way to detect a condition which may stress the baby is through a physical examination and/or other testing.

WHAT TESTS MIGHT I NEED TO HAVE?

Various tests including blood work, bioelectronic monitoring, and ultrasound can help detect potential problems during pregnancy.

EARLY DETECTION FOR HEALTHY BABIES

Early detection gives the perinatologist time to make plans for treatment and delivery.

If you have any conditions which could put you and your baby at increased risk, consult your obstetrician immediately. He or she may refer you to a perinatologist should you need advanced prenatal care.

WANT INFORMATION? If you have a health topic that you would like to read about through our medical columns, please call 593-7028.

NEED A DOCTOR? Our Physician Referral Service can help you find one in your area whose practice suits your family's needs. Call 593-7733, or 1-800-543-WELL.

PRENATAL CARE—
SEEK THE BEST

By Randall T. Kelly, M.D.

Seek prenatal care early. Visit your prenatal care health practitioner regularly. Many potential problems can be identified, prevented or controlled.

CHRONIC HEALTH PROBLEMS
CAN STRESS THE FETUS

Pregnancy stresses every woman's body, but the risks of complications during pregnancy are especially high among women with existing health problems.

Although most women see their regular obstetrician throughout their pregnancy, women who have conditions such as high blood pressure, diabetes, or being over 30, should consult their obstetrician early. Even better, they should discuss pregnancy with their obstetrician before they are pregnant.

If the obstetrician feels a referral for more advanced care is necessary, the woman may be referred to a specialist in high risk pregnancy.

WHAT IS MATERNAL-FETAL MEDICINE OR PERINATOLOGY?

Perinatologists are specialists who have received advanced training in treating complicated pregnancies.

State leaders already face abortion legislation

By DANIEL CALABRESE
ANP Staff Writer

Now that the U.S. Supreme Court has cleared the way for state restrictions on abortion, two Michigan state senators have taken the lead on the issue.

In legislation proposed by Sens. Jack Welborn (R-Kalamazoo) and Fred Dillingham (R-Fowlerville), the state would follow the lead of Missouri, which approved the original restrictive law that was upheld July 3 by the High Court.

In three bills and one Senate joint resolution, the senators are proposing strong restrictions on the use of state funds and facilities for abortions, and would require parental consent before abortions could be performed on minors.

Welborn, an outspoken conservative and a long-time foe of abortion, intends to continue aggressively pushing the bills.

Tim Goodrich, Welborn's legislative aide, said Welborn does not intend to "test" the Supreme Court with any cases that go beyond the restrictions allowed in the Missouri ruling.

"We wouldn't want to test the Supreme Court further," Goodrich said. "The only thing we would do is if the Supreme Court allowed further restrictions (in future rulings)."

Senate bills 13 through 15 would prohibit public employees from performing abortions, prohibit the use of public facilities for abortions, ban the use of public funds to counsel women to have abortions and require parental consent before abortions can be performed on minors.

Local legislators had mixed reactions to the proposals.

State Sen. Robert Geake (R-Northville) said he would support the Welborn bills, and believes they will push the freedom to restrict abortion to the legal limit.

"These bills will go as far as can be seen under this latest Supreme Court ruling," Geake said.

Rep. Justine Barns (D-Westland), was unavailable for comment, but a representative from her office said she expects Barns to follow her pro-choice stance and oppose any further restrictions on abortion.

But Rep. James Kosteva (D-Canton Township), said he will maintain his position as a "pro-life legislator" and support Welborn's bill.

"I will be cautiously supportive," Kosteva said. "I will generally support the kinds of restrictions the Supreme Court has upheld in the Missouri case."

Acknowledging that the abortion issue has often caused Democrats to split, Kosteva said he does not anticipate an increase in party divisions if abortion becomes a major campaign issue.

If Blanchard vetoes the bill, however, Kosteva said he would have to assess whether to continue his pattern of voting to override the governor on abortion legislation.

State Sen. William Faust (D-Westland), has been generally pro-life, but said it would be a mistake for Michigan to rush into new abortion restrictions without waiting to see how the laws work in Missouri.

"Now that the court has ruled, Michigan would be foolish to jump into changes," Faust said.

Currently, he said, he would not support restrictions, and does not foresee any changes in the law this year.

Opinion

Criticism without a solution is pointless

A group of parents, business leaders and assorted members of the school district staff are planning their first-ever formal gathering next week. They will meet to plot plans for a better Wayne-Westland school district.

That's good news.

A group of angry homeowners living on the eastern border of Canton Township, near the city of Wayne, are talking among themselves. They want their children to attend the Plymouth-Canton school district, rather than the Wayne-Westland schools. They intend to become vocal enough that their shouts are heard and action is taken.

That, too, is good news.

A group of parents in Romulus have watched closely the actions of Romulus school officials, as those officials studied the needs of teens in the district and contemplated a school-based health clinic. These parents never winced at the chance to question school officials, to scrutinize their every action and to sound the alarm when they sensed wrongdoing.

Again, this is good news.

All three of these examples have demonstrated the simple fact that our own form of American democracy is still effective. Members of the community sharing a common gripe or concern have every right and every reason to congregate, communicate, comment and criticize.

But they must never forget the most fundamental rule of fair comment and criticism: What is torn apart must also be rebuilt.

Too often, we fear, many potential members of such advocacy groups are turned away from the cause because key members of these groups have reinforced the stereotypes that these "brush-fire organizations" are composed mainly of radicals whose only objective is to continually stir controversy.

Yes, we have witnessed such groups locally.

The Citizens for Better Education group, in the Plymouth-Canton schools, was a good idea. It is unfortunate that the spokespeople for this group - which advocates the censoring of certain library books in the schools and is best known for its hard-line stance on pornography, sexuality and religion in public schools - were so vocal that their comments and actions often could be construed only as outrageous and unruly.

Other examples could likewise be described.

But - rather than chastise, criticize and condemn the actions of these local groups - we hope to reinforce in the minds of members of such groups the need for an open mind, for fair comment and for suggestions on how to solve the problems presented.

If that philosophy is taken to heart by members of every local advocacy group, it will be very good news for us all.

Solid-waste decision needed

Wayne County officials are sending mixed messages to the community as they sidestep the controversial issue of a workable solid-waste plan.

Members of the Wayne County Solid Waste Implementation Committee - chaired by local county Commissioner Milton Mack (D-Wayne) - have repeatedly delayed implementation of a solid-waste plan, pending proposed changes. If county officials are truly serious about addressing the local solid-waste problem, they have yet to prove it to members of the community.

Solid-waste plan committee members announced their intentions to adopt a county "master plan" for solid-waste disposal May 22. Community reaction to the plan, however, delayed a decision until July 17.

Committee members again met Monday - July 17 - but the lack of a quorum forced another delay. This time, no date was scheduled for the matter to again be considered.

The solid-waste plan has been the target of considerable criticism since it was introduced last year. The original proposal called for a 75-percent reduction of residential wastes by the year 2000. The reduction would stem from a change in the way local communities dispose of garbage.

Currently, landfills are predominantly used. The new solid-waste plan stresses recycling, composting and incineration.

Local officials believe the 75-percent mark is unattainable and have proposed 50- and 40-percent reduction levels.

Whatever the final plan will look like, such a road map needs to be in place before county officials pat themselves on the back for dealing effectively with solid waste. These same county officials have yet to experience the real controversy of the matter - the one which will begin when local residents learn that disposing of the weekly household garbage won't be as easy as a trip to the curb.

These citizens need education, direction and assistance in how to change their lifestyles in regard to solid waste. But, first, they need to see leadership and decisions being made by their elected leaders - not the current bureaucratic standstill.

NOW THAT WE'VE PICKED IT APART, I GUESS WE SHOULD REBUILD IT BETTER!

Mobile home tax unfair to residents

Concerning the controversy of mobile-home residents in Canton Township, here is yet another stunning blow from our very own township government. A proposed tax increase of $3 monthly.

This is on top of a $25 increase in rent for this piece of land, plus a 16-page list of regulations. What is this additional tax for? To pay for the new luxurious library, much more opulent than necessary.

Or is it for salary raises for these uncaring politicians?

Many mobile-home renters are seniors living on Social Security checks, who have paid school taxes all of their lives.

You may be sure we are going to vote these busy township politicians out of office come next election.

Rich and Carolyn Moss

Mankind is on endangered list

There is a new member that has been added to the "endangered species list" in Michigan. It is mankind - specifically, our older generation.

First, it was the abortion of the unborn. Now, the possible termination of the elderly could be at stake. Add to this the potential eradication of comatose patients, bedridden people, non-dying people and incapacitated people and one can visualize what is coming down the road.

Certain legislation, which has been introduced in the state

House of Representatives, if passed, may precipitate the active slaughter of thousands of helpless victims. With no safeguards to prevent taking food and water away for non-dying patients, many people could be facing an "untimely demise."

Should this legislation have been introduced? No, never. Who would be responsible for determining what the word "value" means concerning human life? Who decides who will live or die?

Because this bill was introduced, however, alternate legislation had to be introduced to protect potential "victims" from this legislation. This should be left entirely up to an individual and his family, not the government to decide the right to live or die.

The elderly are more valuable than mere words can say. The years bestowed on them brought a wealth of experience that is invaluable, a wealth of love, an abundance of joy and sorrow and memories not to be matched by the younger generation.

Through them, we are allowed to reimburse them for all the years of care they gave us as children. Surely, the elderly enhance society like no one else can.

They will never be a burden to mankind. It is unfortunate that certain factions want to eradicate the very culmination of all that the elderly are - the voice of experience.

In this present-day, self-centered and selfish society, one has to wonder - Who is next on society's abortion list?

Possibly physically, emotionally and mentally handicapped people, minorities, blue-eyed, blond-haired people, French, German and Italian people, prisoners . . . you and me.

A legal "hit list" will do nothing to protect the people in Michigan. It will destroy it.

Tax abatements hurt our city

Did your taxes go up this year? Did you go before the tax review board and, with a little bit of luck, they might reduce your taxes 5 or 10 percent? But, in the process, they will raise your taxes the next year to compensate for it.

If you attend the city council meetings in the next few months, you will see the recommendation of the planning commission that they approve a 50-percent tax abatement for the Ford Motor Co. for 12 years.

I have watched the planning commission go through the motions. They will listen to your viewpoint, smile at you and tell you they respect your opinion and go ahead and make a recommendation to the city council to approve it. The city council will make the final decision on it.

Eight times out of 10, it will be approved.

This is how the city government works in Wayne.

I have voiced my opinion to Mayor Patrick Norton on several of these tax-abatement issues. He tells me, "Mr. Hull, I am against tax abatement."

Well, if he is, he sure has a funny way of showing it.

It's time for the people of Wayne to stand up and say "enough is enough!" Give the people of Wayne a tax break and not Ford Motor Co.

PRODUCE
BY THE ROADSIDE

Imagine the taste of fresh corn on the cob.
Hear the sound of the pale yellow kernels crackling as the sweet nectar drowns your taste buds with pleasure.
Or how about the sheer delight of a crunchy wedge of juicy watermelon?
Residents of western Wayne County can do more than just dream of these summer treats. In fact, fresh fruits and vegetables are more than likely just a "stone's throw" away.

Whether it be in a market or the more traditional roadside stand, the finest Michigan produce will debut within the next month in the area. Owners of markets and stands are busy preparing for the arrival of the delectable crop.
Joan Sayre, of Sayre's Red Barn Market and U-Pick Farm, said her husband Jim buys their produce from Eastern Market and The Detroit Produce Terminal until Michigan goods are ready. Then, if the quality is good, the Sayres buy from local farmers and also sell produce from their own farm.

Sayre's, located at 43380 Ecorse Road in Belleville, is a unique roadside market in that it offers customers the options of either buying off the shelf or going directly to the field and picking their own - it doesn't come much fresher than that.
Many produce items are offered in the fields, such as tomatoes and various kinds of beans. The market also carries out-of-state goods such as grapes, bananas and pineapples.

Changing lifestyles, however, have limited the number of people who pick their own goods, Sayre said.
"We don't get as many people picking their own as we used to - everybody is so busy working," Sayre said.
It is the older customer who still ventures out in the field. Although few people choose that form of purchase, Sayre said the small market still does a good business. So good that they employ approximately 10 high school and college students each summer.
Sayre believes the season will be a good one for Michigan produce.
Heavy rains earlier in the season prohibited the Sayres from planting their usual 75 acres of soybean. The 60 acres of sweet corn on the other hand, benefited from the wet weather, Sayre said.

The good weather which has nurtured the corn comes as a blessing to the Sayres because sweet corn is one of the more popular items. Other big sellers include watermelons, tomatoes, beans, and muskmelons. Muskmelons, Sayre said, will be available in approximately two weeks.

Carol Lowe, a regular shopper at Sayre's, said she frequently shops at the market because the produce is fresh and of premium quality, adding that the atmosphere is pleasant and friendly.

"It's nice to help out the independent people as opposed to a conglomerate," Lowe said. "My grandfather was a farmer and he had a little fruit stand. Shopping here brings back memories."

Memories are dear to Ruby Moss and her son Jim, of Ruby's Produce Market. It is located on Michigan Avenue in Canton Township.

Ruby's roadside market started out 30 years ago as a vegetable cart beneath a tree. The tree now towers above a small building from which the Moss family sells the freshest produce they can find.

Managing the market hasn't really changed much over the years, Moss said, but they have witnessed changes in the produce market in general. The biggest change occurred when the big markets in downtown Detroit went from selling wholesale to market owners to selling to the general public.

Jim Moss normally travels to Detroit four days each week to buy produce and every day when Michigan produce comes into season. Living at the oldest address in Canton, the Moss family is proud of the good relations they have with the area farmers and whenever possible, they buy locally.

In the fall, customers can purchase products grown by Ruby herself, such as Indian corn and pumpkins. Ruby also sells fresh cider during the fall and Michigan grown Christmas trees during the holidays.

Variety is also a characteristic present at The Roadside, located at 43125 Joy Road in Canton.

A Canton Township produce market is the best spot for taste-tempting fruit and vegetables, according to Kathy Cronin, of Plymouth. Her market of choice is the Canton Country Market, on Canton Center Road.

The roadside market of Ruby Moss (above) began 30 years ago as a vegetable cart beneath a tree. The tree now towers above a small building from which members of the Moss family sell the freshest produce they can find. Fresh produce - such as a bushel of crisp, ripe Michigan beans - is important to Wendy Robinson (top left) and Lona Kalm (bottom left). Robinson works at The Roadside, on Joy Road, in Canton Township. Kalm is a frequent customer there.

Local farming fading fast

'Land is better for apartments than farming'

By DANIEL CALABRESE
ANP Staff Writer

Farming was the mainstay of the western Wayne County economy during the mid-19th century.

Welcome to the 20th century. Today, according to statistics and those who work with the farming industry, it has become increasingly difficult to farm in the area.

Lenny Strong, manager of Clyde Smith and Sons Farm Market and Greenhouse, in Westland, said members of his family changed from doing their own farming to purchasing farm goods approximately 10 years ago, after more than 140 years of tilling the local soil. "People threw stuff more than they picked it," Strong said.

It has become more cost effective to allow someone else to grow the goods and to buy them, Strong said, partly because money is increasingly going into businesses other than agriculture.

"Property's worth more for apartments than for farming," Strong said.

Because of that economic situation, he said, members of his family may be faced with the decision of whether to sell the farming property or remain in the business they have enjoyed for several generations.

Recent studies have indicated that this situation is not uncommon among farmers, who are decreasing in number in many areas, particularly in Wayne County.

Statistics released by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments show that there are 439 farms in all of Wayne County. Most of them are small.

Figures indicate that 63.6 percent of Wayne County farms span less than 50 acres, while 3.4 percent are 500 acres or more.

Only 46 percent of Wayne County farmers list farming as their principal occupation.

Only 34.4 percent of Wayne County farms earn $10,000 or more per year in sales, and only 8 percent earn more than $100,000.

Nevertheless, Wayne County has the highest percentage of crop farms of any county in Michigan - 96 percent. The remaining 4 percent of Wayne County farms are for livestock and poultry.

Statistics released by SEMCOG also suggest that farming is not an industry that can afford to hire full-time help.

In western Wayne County, the only communities with any identifiable farm workers are Sumpter Township, with 3 percent of the labor force in farming, and Van Buren Township, with 1 percent.

Outlook is grim for area farmers-to-be

Area youngsters considering to make local farming their career should think again. The future of farming in Wayne County is fading quickly, demographic analysts report, and is being replaced by residential, commercial and industrial developments.

What follows are the percentages of principle occupations western Wayne County residents listed during the 1980 U.S. Census. The bold number indicates the top occupation in that community.

ANNIVERSARIES

Tegge - 50th

William and Betty Tegge, of South River Park Drive in Inkster, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary June 24 during a renewal of their wedding vows and a celebration at St. Norbert's Church, in Inkster.

The Rev. Brian Chabala officiated during the renewal-of-vows ceremony.

The two were married June 24, 1939, in Inkster. They are the parents of three children - William Charles Tegge, Carol Bell and Ruth Ann Groesbeck. They have eight grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. William Tegge and six great-grandchildren. The Tegges have lived in the community since they were married. The anniversary celebration was hosted by their children. William is a retired employee of the Ford Motor Co. Dearborn Engine Plant. He currently works at Messer Limousine Service, in Wyandotte.

Betty has been a housewife. William formerly served on the city planning commission and currently is a member of the aging commission. He has been a candidate for city councilman and for mayor and served on the charter commission in 1952 and 1977. He was a member of the appeals board and was a candidate for a delegate's seat for the state constitutional convention.

Betty is a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Col. Joshua Howard Chapter. Approximately 120 guests attended the anniversary celebration, including their maid of honor, Lennie Van Eck (Dickinson) and best man, Frank Tegge. Friends and relatives attending included Mr. and Mrs. Bob Van Eck, of New Smyrna Beach, Fla.; Rick Van Eck, of New Smyrna, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. Barry Savage, of Burbank, Ill.; Barbara Savage, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tegge, of Dearborn; Pat Tegge, of Garden City; and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Van Eck, of Fowlerville.

Shoppers at The Roadside are greeted by trays and hanging baskets of colorful flowers. Once inside, attention is drawn to the neat mounds of fruits and vegetables, as well as honey and freshly baked bread.

Nancy Schmidt manages the market while her husband Richard spends the day buying from Detroit and area farmers. She said that so far the season looks pretty good, but that everything depends on the weather.

The Roadside has been family owned for more than 20 years, and Schmidt said the buying habits of her customers have changed somewhat.

"They're not buying in bulk like they did before," Schmidt said.

Lona Kalmbach of Plymouth is a regular customer at The Roadside. She especially enjoys the fresh tomatoes, peaches and blueberries offered at the market. The produce is fresher than at a large grocery store, she said.

The Belleville area offers a twist to the traditional image of a farm market.

Louy's Fruit Market and Deli is located in The Van Buren Plaza and has been in business for six months.

Owner Louy Hami, however, has been in the produce business for 15 years. Hami started out as a produce man and then became a buyer for a chain of markets before opening his new market.

The market is different than many others because it remains open year-round, Hami said.

Just like the other farm markets, Hami buys from Detroit and from area farmers whenever possible. Buying locally is best, Hami said.

Whether shopping for that delectable ear of corn, the juiciest tomato or the crunchiest apple, local markets and produce stands are sure to have what you need.

And take it from Ruby Moss, a veteran in the produce business, "Michigan is a good produce state."

Right now, as this column is being read by both my faithful fans, I am lounging on the porch at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island. If not to be found on the world-renowned porch, I am in the tea shoppe, stuffing my face with pastries of all sorts and types. They will have to get derrick to get me on the boat back to the mainland, but it will be worth it.

At any rate, this is one place where the phones can't get me, and I don't have to make any decision more serious than which piece of cake to eat next. But, because I do have some sympathy for those of you left sweltering in the heat without a pastry chef to wait on you, I did finagle recipes from the experts at the Grand last year.

It wasn't easy, but after watching me stuff my face with their creations and hearing my moans of ecstasy which wafted right into the acre-size kitchen, they felt I was worthy of their confidence and shared a couple of their secrets.

These recipes may seem somewhat mundane, but believe me, the way the professionals do these things cannot be topped. This is the most fabulous carrot cake known to my taste buds and this pie, well, it's just short of a miracle.

There, now I don't have to feel quite so guilty. See you next week.

Carrot cake

- 1 1/4 cups corn oil
- 2 cups sugar
- 2 cups flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 4 eggs
- 1 pound carrots, peeled and grated
- 1 cup chopped pecans
- 1 cup raisins

Combine oil and sugar in mixing bowl and beat well. Sift sugar, flour, baking powder, cinnamon, soda and salt together. Add one half mixture to sugar and oil and blend well. Add remaining half, blending alternately with the eggs. Mix well after each addition. Add and stir in by hand the carrots, pecans and raisins. Pour the batter into a lightly oiled 10-inch tube pan, and bake at 325 degrees for about an hour and 10 minutes. Cool upright in the pan. Frost with cream cheese icing when cool.

Reese's peanut butter pie

- 1 prepared graham-cracker crumb crust
- 3 ounces cream cheese, softened
- 1 cup sifted confectioner's sugar
- 1/4 cup heavy cream
- 1 cup peanut butter, smooth
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 4 Reese's Peanut Butter Cups, chopped
- 1 1/2 cups heavy cream, chilled

Beat the cream cheese with the confectioner's sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in the 1/4 cup heavy cream, peanut butter and vanilla. In a chilled bowl, beat the 1 1/2 cups heavy cream until it forms stiff peaks. Stir one-third of the whipped cream into the peanut butter mixture. Fold in the remaining whipped cream gently and thoroughly. Fold in the chopped peanut butter cups. Turn the filling into the prebaked crust and refrigerate overnight. Garnish with whipped cream and chocolate shavings.

For a country obsessed with low-calorie, nutritious food, frozen yogurt is "a natural."

For Angie Nesich, yogurt has been a family tradition for several generations.

Nesich owns the J. Higby's frozen-yogurt shop, on Warren, in Westland. When she opened the shop in November, she had already been a yogurt fan for several years.

"This is old history for us," Nesich said.

Every week, Nesich makes old-style, plain yogurt for her family. She acquired the yogurt-making skill from her Yugoslavian-born mother and grandmother.

Nesich's decision to open the Westland shop, however, stemmed more from a love for people than a love for yogurt. The youngest of her three children is in high school, and Nesich wanted a "hobby" to help occupy her time.

"It's a fun job. I wanted to try something new. I do meet the nicest people here," Nesich explained.

A Dearborn resident, Nesich takes great pride in her business and the fact that her goodies are nutritious. One ounce of her yogurt contains only 22 calories and no fat.

"We're into health foods here," she boasts.

Nesich also tackles the burden of tasting the yogurt regularly, to ensure that the flavor is satisfactory. Her job admittedly has several advantages, she said, with a smile.

Although J. Higby's is a California-based national chain, Nesich has tried to personalize the local business. She regularly stocks home-baked goodies — such as cream-cheese pound cake, seafood salad sandwiches and spinach pie. The pie is one of Nesich's specialties and is a popular dish for her family.

Cooking at home with family recipes is still a favorite pastime for Nesich. In addition to the spinach pie, she takes considerable delight in the preparation of stuffed peppers, yogurt salads and cheese pie.

Feta cheese is an ingredient in many of Nesich's dishes. And, like the yogurt-shop desserts, nutrition is at the forefront of all of her meals.

When asked what her favorite flavor of yogurt is, Nesich admitted her preference for homemade, plain yogurt, served with a cheese pastry. In her country, she explained, yogurt is used more as part of a meal than as a dessert.

Nevertheless, frozen yogurt in America is gaining on the popularity of ice cream. Business at J. Higby's has been increasing steadily, Nesich said.

She is even contemplating the opening of a second location.

The recipes supplied by Nesich below represent a wide range of cooking styles, including the recipes of her homeland and the popular frozen-yogurt treats of today. Most of them, however, are merciful on the waistline.

And, of course, all are nutritious!

Angie's recipe for homemade yogurt

- 2 quarts milk
- 2 teaspoons plain yogurt culture
- 1 small blanket

Bring milk to boil in large pot. Cool. (The milk is ready when the cook can stand to keep her finger in it for 17 seconds.) Add yogurt culture (available at most health-food stores). Stir well. Pour mixture in small, sterile jars. Cover tops with lids or wrap with tin foil.

Over all of the jars, wrap a blanket. Allow jars to sit at room temperature exactly 7 hours. Then, refrigerate jars overnight. The following day, they will be ready to serve or use in a recipe.

Homemade yogurt salad

- 1 jar of homemade plain yogurt
- 1 cucumber, sliced finely
- 1 clove garlic, chopped finely
- 1 tablespoon cooking oil
- 1 cup chopped nuts
- Salt to taste
- Black pepper to taste

Yogurt should be cold for this recipe. If desired, a small amount of water may be added to the yogurt to thin it.

Mix in cucumber, garlic, oil, nuts and seasonings. Serve immediately. This salad has enough protein to be a full meal, but it is also a cool snack on a hot day.

Spinach pie

- Fresh, cut spinach (enough to fill a large salad bowl)
- 1/2 pound feta cheese, crumbled
- 2 eggs
- 1 quart nonfat cottage cheese
- Pre-made sheets of phyllo (Pastry used for spinach pie)
- Butter or margarine

Work together with hands spinach, feta cheese, cottage cheese and eggs. Mix thoroughly. Cut phyllo into strips 3 inches wide. Place spoonfuls of spinach mix on top corner of strip. If desired, sprinkle with melted butter or margarine. Fold strip diagonally to form triangle. Continue to fold in triangles until phyllo is used. Continue process with other strips. Place on baking pan or cookie sheet.

Top each triangle with sliver of butter. Bake in 375-degree oven approximately 45 minutes. Baking rack should be on second level from the top. Pies can be served warm or cool. Goes well with salad.

Strawberry dessert

- 9 ounces strawberry frozen yogurt
- 1/2 cup chopped pecans
- Strawberries or other seasonal fruit
- Whipped cream

Mix strawberry yogurt in blender until smooth. Pour into small dessert dishes. Mix in strawberries or other fruit of your choice. Top with nuts and whipped cream. This makes an ideal low-calorie dessert for the summer.

High-protein shake

- 11 ounces nonfat yogurt
- 1 egg
- 5 ounces skim milk
- 1/2 banana
- 2 ounces protein powder (available at health food stores)

Mix all ingredients in blender until smooth. Serve immediately. This drink, along with the protein powder, is also available at the yogurt shop.

NOTE: The following recipes are popular goodies at the yogurt shop. They have been simplified to try at home.

Fruit smoothie

- 8 ounces nonfat frozen yogurt (vanilla, or flavor of choice)
- 6 ounces apple or orange juice
- 1/2 banana, chopped
- 2 tablespoons fresh strawberry pieces

Place all ingredients in blender. Allow a few chunks of strawberries to remain. Serve immediately. This makes a less heavy alternative to the milk shake.

Banana boat

- Whole banana, split down middle
- 3 scoops nonfat frozen yogurt, different flavors
- 1 cup each of fruit toppings (pick from frozen strawberries, peaches, pineapple chunks, etc.)
- Whipped cream

In banana-boat dessert-dish, place banana slices. Top with yogurt scoops. On each scoop, place a different topping. Place whipped cream over entire mixture. Add chopped nuts and cherries if desired.

Cracker sandwiches with yogurt filling

- 1 package large Armenian cracker bread, softened
- 8 ounces cream cheese, softened and whipped
- 1/4 cup plain yogurt
- 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
- 1 6/4 cup chopped green onion
- 2 tablespoons snipped fresh dill

For the topping:

- 1/2 to 3/4 pound thinly sliced smoked salmon
- 2 tablespoons chopped drained capers

Soften cracker bread by holding it under a soft spray of water until moistened. Turn cracker over and moisten it on the other side. Cover with damp towels and let sit for at least 1 hour, or until soft and pliable. Check the cracker periodically. If there are any dry spots, sprinkle with water and cover again.

Combine cream cheese, yogurt, lemon juice, onion and dill in a small bowl. Cover softened cracker with spread as directed. Top with slices of smoked salmon. Distribute capers over the top. Roll up tightly, jelly-roll fashion. Cover with damp towels until ready to serve.

Moroccan rice with yogurt

- 1 small onion, finely chopped
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 cup long grain white rice
- 1/2 cup raw bulgar wheat
- 2 1/2 cups chicken stock
- 1/4 cup dried currants
- 1/2 teaspoon ground allspice
- Salt and pepper
- 1 cup plain yogurt
- 1/2 cup toasted almonds

In a 10-inch skillet, saute onion in butter and oil over medium heat until golden. Add rice and bulgar and stir to coat grains. Stir in stock, currants, allspice, salt and pepper. Bring to a boil, reduce heat to low, cover, and cook 15 to 20 minutes, or until liquid is absorbed. Accompany each serving with yogurt and sprinkling of toasted nuts.

▲ The day begins at J. Higby's frozen yogurt, in Westland, with the filling of the yogurt-machine hoppers (first photo, above). The machines are filled each morning and sterilized at the end of the day. Nesich and store employee Chrissy Hood (left, second photo) are often asked to serve their frozen-yogurt concoctions in waffle cones and dishes. To add the finishing touch, a variety of healthy toppings are available for the frozen-yogurt treats. Nesich (third photo) will spoon on fruit, granola mix, nuts — even an "unhealthy" candy sprinkle or two.

Infertility? Problem pregnancy? Oakwood specialists are here to help.

DR. MARIA HAYES
Director Oakwood's Division of Reproductive Endocrinology and Infertility.

DR. FEDERICO MARIONA
Director of Oakwood's Division of Maternal-Fetal Medicine.

Q. What is infertility therapy and who needs it?

A. Infertility therapy is an investigation into and the treatment of problems preventing conception. We evaluate women who have been trying to become pregnant for at least one year. If the woman is over 35 years of age, she is evaluated after six months of attempting to achieve pregnancy. We evaluate immediately a woman who has an obvious cause of infertility such as lack of menstruation or known damage to the fallopian tubes. In addition, we offer treatment for people who have had sterilization and desire reversal, for women who have had repeated miscarriages, and for women with uterine fibroids or pelvic endometriosis.

Q. What kinds of infertility testing does Oakwood offer?

A. Tests are conducted on both the husband and wife, beginning with the simplest tests. Included may be evaluation of ovulation by observing basal body temperatures in the wife, hormonal studies, a hysterosalpingogram (a test to determine if the fallopian tubes are obstructed), and semen analyses.

If these tests are normal, we conduct a postcoital test a few hours after intercourse to see if the sperm are surviving well in the cervical mucus. If this is normal, we do an endometrial biopsy to evaluate the lining of the uterus, to tell us whether it is developing well enough for an egg to attach. As a last step, we use a laparoscope (a telescope-like device with a camera) to view and evaluate the uterus, fallopian tubes, and ovaries through the navel.

Q. Once the cause of infertility is diagnosed, what can you do to correct the problem?

A. We prescribe medication (fertility drugs) to correct lack of ovulation. Blockage of the fallopian tubes is corrected by surgery. If the woman has a problem with her cervical mucus, we administer medication or perform artificial insemination with the husband's semen.

If problems with semen quality are encountered, medication, insemination with the husband's semen, or referral to a urologist for repair of a varicose vein in the scrotum (if one exists) may be used. If the semen quality cannot be improved, we offer artificial insemination with donor semen.

In vitro fertilization is offered in cases of irreparable tubal damage, severe endometriosis, uncorrectable cervical problems, and very low sperm counts.

Q. How long does a patient need to see an infertility specialist?

A. Until a successful pregnancy is achieved or we determine that a problem exists which cannot be corrected. A successful pregnancy is defined as being able to detect a fetal heartbeat in the uterus on an ultrasound. If the pregnancy is progressing normally, the woman is referred back to her obstetrician. If it is considered a high-risk pregnancy, the obstetrician may seek consultation with a perinatologist, such as Dr. Mariona.

Q. How do you determine if a pregnancy is "high-risk"?

A. We review the patient's previous obstetrical history and present health. A high risk pregnancy can occur in a young woman with a chronic disease, such as diabetes, high blood pressure, or heart disease; a woman with a history of past problem pregnancies, including multiple miscarriages; and/or a woman who is over age 35.

Q. What is the first step a woman fitting any of these profiles should take when considering pregnancy?

A. First she should come in for preconception counseling with her partner. During our initial meeting, we would discuss the couple's general health and medical history and determine what their risks are for carrying a baby to term.

Q. What services does Oakwood's Division of Maternal-Fetal Medicine offer for high-risk pregnancy?

A. We perform prenatal diagnosis on the fetus to give the couple appropriate information on the presence of a normal or abnormal baby. These tests include chorionic villus sampling (CVS), in which a portion of the placental tissue is examined for genetic abnormalities while the fetus is attaching itself to the lining of the uterus. This test can be performed as early as eight or nine weeks into the pregnancy.

We also do amniocentesis when the fetus is between 13 and 15 weeks old. During this procedure, we obtain a sample of amniotic fluid that is then examined for genetic abnormalities.

If the pregnancy is further along, we perform ultrasound, in which high frequency sound penetrates into the tissue and bounces off the structure of the fetus to generate pictures that we can observe. We use various types of ultrasound to look at organs, how the organs are functioning, and how the baby's systems are developing. We then arrive at a total evaluation that tells us if the baby is normal, growing, and functioning as it should.

Later in the pregnancy, other observations are performed, including but not limited to electronic and biophysical observations of the developing fetus, along with continuous monitoring of the mother to detect or treat complications.

Call Oakwood Hospital at 1-800-543-WELL for the name of a physician on our staff.

Area queens of diamond can trump state aces

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

In June, New Boston Huron's Lauri Labeau completed a sterling athletic career.

Labeau, an all-state basketball player who could play just about any sport well, made the Roundball Classic and led the West over the East in a recent summer classic game. She was voted the tournament's Most Valuable.

Labeau also starred on the Chiefs' softball team.

Playing short and taking over the mound when asked to, Labeau managed to finish her senior season with a hefty .441 batting average. She also belted a pair of homers and collected 15 runs batted in.

Like the other members selected to this year's team, Lauri could play just about any position on the field. She, like the others, is very versatile.

Recruited by many colleges, Lauri has decided to pursue her academic and athletic careers at Alma College.

Labeau leads the star-filled roster of local softball players who were nominated to the 1989 Associated Newspapers' All-Area Girls Softball Team.

The lineup also includes: Belleville pitcher Brandi Price, catchers - Lisa Bishop (Belleville), Andrea Young (Romulus), Jennifer Pinter (New Boston Huron), first base - Laurie Berlinn (Romulus) and Laura Haener (New Boston Huron).

Other outstanding athletes named to the lineup by the area coaches are: Lisa Smith (Robichaud), Michele Scarrow (Romulus), Jennifer Daniel (Romulus), Kathy Murphy (Belleville) and Christy Garrett (Belleville).

GARRETT, voted the Tigers' Most Valuable Player, earned statewide recognition this season as she was named to the coveted all-state team after a sterling season.

The 18-year-old senior has phenomenal credentials. She batted .515 on the year, but was on base .678 percent of the time.

"Christy is the most talented all-around player I have ever coached," said Belleville Coach Peggy Curtis and, when you consider that Curtis has had two talented ball clubs that won the state title, that's saying a lot.

Garrett also hammered seven home runs, six triples, seven doubles and had 37 RBIs. She also successfully stole 25 out of an attempted 29 steals.

A member of the Tiger varsity squad for the past three years, Garrett will attend Wayne State University next fall on a softball scholarship.

MURPHY, also a dynamic versatile athlete with stripes in basketball, volleyball and softball, was awarded a scholarship to Henry Ford Community College, and she will be playing basketball, her forte, for the Hawks.

Like Garrett, Kathy is also a three-year varsity performer who can handle any of the infield or outfield chores. At the plate, she accounted for a .353 batting average and scored 37 times. A quick-footed athlete, Murphy stole base 22 of 24 times.

BISHOP, who started behind the plate all four years but also was used, when needed, in the infield, wound up her senior year with a .329 batting average. She had six extra base hits, including a homer and five doubles.

She knocked in 18 runs.

"You can't never say enough about this player," Curtis noted. "She's dedicated. A hard worker. And a pleasure to have on the team."

Like her teammates Garrett and Murphy, Bishop also was picked on the First Team all-Wolverine 'A' Conference team.

PRESTON, an infielder who was Belleville's "bunt specialist", produced 23 hits, including a double, in a .299 season.

The Tigers' second baseman for the past three years, Preston was reliable and a steady performer that Curtis called a "valuable asset" to the team.

"She had the uncanny ability to put down the bunt when we needed to advance players or to get aboard," Curtis said. Preston was picked second team all-conference.

In Belleville tradition, the Tigers surfaced with one of the top hurlers in the area and conference in Brandi Price.

PRICE, a durable performer - she pitched all of the Tigers' conference games - finished with an enviable 16-5 won-lost record. Only 7 percent of all the batters she faced this year managed to work her for a walk.

A varsity member for only two years, Price managed to muscle her way into the starting lineup and never yielded the No.1 spot in the pitching rotation over a span of the past two years.

Price posted a .650 earned run average (ERA) and her opponents managed only 3.6 hits in the 21 games she pitched.

BERLINN, another one of the many multi-talented athletes on this year's elite team, starred in basketball, volleyball, and softball - earning all-conference consideration in all three sports. She will attend Texas Christian University on a full-ride scholarship, thus became the first Romulus High women athlete ever to be awarded an athletic scholarship to a major university.

Lori batted .435 in her final year, and handled the first baseman's chores for Coach Ron Bayes' Eagles.

SCARROW, a sophomore, is also heading for the Romulus record books. She led the tough South Central Confer-

City golf tournament deadline set

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

A Friday, Aug. 4 deadline has been established for those who wish to compete in the City Championship Golf Tournament.

The tournament will be staged two days, Friday and Sunday, Aug. 12-13, at Fellows Creek Golf Course, 2936 Lotz Road, in Canton Township.

Bill Hawley, tournament manager, said the deadline is needed in order to set up foursomes and tee times for the tournament.

"Usually we receive between 85 to 100 requests to compete in this tournament," Hawley said, "and in order to pair the foursomes into compatible groups, we will need some time."

"Therefore, I am urging all of those golfers who anticipate competing in this year's tournament to get their entry blanks in as soon as possible."

The tournament, in its 30th year, is sponsored by The Associated Newspapers in cooperation with the participating area parks and recreation departments of Wayne, Westland, Inkster, Garden City, and Canton Township. Golfers from Belleville and Van Buren Township are also invited to compete.

There is a $39 registration fee which covers the costs for trophies and greens fees.

The format for the 36-hole tournament involves playing an 18-hole qualifying round (Saturday, Aug. 12), then returning for the championship round on Sunday, Aug. 13. Tee times will be announced in this newspaper the week of the tournament.

Separate city championships are conducted simultaneously for amateur male golfers of all of the participating cities. Additional flight competition will be staged for each of the cities if the total entry from a city warrants it.

Trophies will be presented to the first, second, and third place finishers of each of the flights. An additional trophy will be awarded to the individual low scorer (medalist) of the entire field.

Wayne golfers also will be competing for the Patrolman Len Anderson Traveling Trophy, presented to the medalist from Wayne. The memorial trophy is donated by the Wayne Police Department in memory of Patrolman Anderson, the first police officer slain in the line of duty in the city.

Competitors also will be playing to qualify for their city team. The low five scorers from each city will be eligible to play on their city team at the state parks and recreation department. The state finals will be conducted on Sept. 23 on the Binder Park golf course in Battle Creek.

However, only bona fide residents may represent their city in the state finals.

To enter, competitors should complete the registration blank accompanying this story. Mail it and the $39 entry fee to: Associated Newspapers, Golf Tournament, 35540 Michigan Ave., Wayne, MI. 48184.

Please make checks payable to Bill Hawley, tournament manager.

For further information, please contact Tom Mooradian at 729-4000 during regular business hours, Monday through Friday, at 729-4000.

Romulus is seeking tournament golfers

The Romulus Parks and Recreation Department is seeking golfers for its city championship tournament.

The tournament will be conducted Saturday and Sunday, July 29-30 at the Shady Hollow Golf Course in Romulus.

There is a $30 registration fee (cars are extra), and golfers are asked to register at the parks and recreation offices located at 36515 Bibbins Street or to mail their entries.

Recreation officials say that the tournament will have a men and women's division. The number of flights will be determined by the overall number of participants.

The top five golfers in the championship flight will qualify to play in the state parks and recreation finals to be conducted Sept. 23 at Binder Park in Battle Creek.

The tournament is sponsored by the parks and recreation.

Golfers are asked to include their name, address and phone number and mail it, along with the $30 registration fee, to the Romulus Parks and Recreation Department, 36515 Bibbins.

Correction

In the Thursday, July 6 edition of the Associated Newspapers, the sports section carried an erroneous statement on the appointment of a Romulus High School basketball coach.

The story should have read that Chris Molloy, a former assistant basketball coach at Eastern Michigan University, has been selected as the new head basketball coach for the boys' varsity team at Romulus.

We regret the error and any inconvenience it may have caused.

Curtis: Coach of the year

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Is there a finer high school girls' softball program in the area or the state than the one at Belleville High School?

Most would say 'no'.

Veteran Belleville High coach Peggy Curtis has produced a winner since she accepted the challenge of fielding her first softball team at the high school in 1978.

In fact, Curtis' teams have won two coveted Class A state titles.

Each year, the Tigers keep their opponents guessing and, although they had to surrender their Wolverine 'A' Conference championship crown to arch-rival, Monroe, this year, Belleville still managed to finish with a strong 12-2 conference record and with more than 20 victories for the overall season.

No other area coach can touch Curtis and the Tigers' record.

Curtis again deserves the post-season honor of 'Coach of the Year'. She earned it.

Curtis' success story, she says, is based on a simple theme: "Hard work".

"There is no substitute for it," she quickly points out. "Get down to the basics and work hard. It will inevitably produce results. That's the foundation of our program."

"We may not always win - no team ever does - but we are always in the thick of the hunt."

Curtis also credits the program's success to a devoted assistant coaching staff "and to a bunch of parents who are always willing to help out."

30 teams to battle for softball title

The annual Johnnie A. Sims Memorial Softball Tournament will get underway on two lighted parks as about 30 local and area teams are scheduled to see action over the weekend.

Action will begin with the preliminary rounds on Friday and continue to the semifinals (Saturday). The championship will be decided on Sunday.

And one of the teams that could win the prestigious men's softball championship is the club that bears the name of the tournament. Sims is presently undefeated in Inkster softball competition and has a 13-game winning streak.

The tournament is named for Johnnie A. Sims, an outstanding all-around athlete who later turned to softball after his pro baseball career was cut short because of a knee injury. Sims was killed in 1985 when he tried to separate two men involved

The games will be played at Westwood and Oakgrove parks.

Recreation officials said that some of the best men's softball teams in the area and state will be in the field for this year's tournament.

The top three teams will be awarded sponsors' trophies, while individual awards will be presented to the players of the teams that play for the championship.

Questions about the weekend tournament should be directed to Ruth E. Williams, recreation director, at 728-7530.

Hunt is on Robichaud is seeking varsity cage coach

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Although it is summer, Robichaud High Athletic Director Leit Jones is thinking winter.

Jones is in the market for a head basketball coach to replace former coach Monte Dennard who resigned after the 1988-89 campaign. The Bulldogs won the Suburban Athletic Conference title the year before (1987-88) and, after leading the SAC pack in the early goings last year and ranked among the best Class B teams in the state, the Bulldogs fell apart when they lost all-state nominee, Michael Aaron, to eligibility.

Robichaud plummeted in the stretch run.

"The job will be a challenge to the successful candidate," Jones said. "We have a lot of talent here, and perpetuating a traditionally strong program is not an easy task."

Jones stressed that the serious applicant for the position should have at least a minimum of three years of varsity coaching experience and "a proven record of success and accomplishment."

The Robichaud AD also noted that, "in addition to having personal attributes that are of the highest moral fiber and beyond reproach, the candidate should have a valid Michigan Secondary Teaching certificate. However, the certificate is preferred, but not mandatory."

Those who wish to apply for the position are urged to send a letter of application, resume, and one letter of reference to Dr. E.F. Minghine, assistant superintendent of Westwood Community Schools, 25912 Annapolis Road, Inkster, MI. 48141.

For further information, telephone Jones at 565-8850.

"Michele is also an excellent fielder," said athletic director Fred Coleman. "She is outstanding now, just think what she can accomplish in the next two years."

DANIEL, also an underclassman, pitched the key games for the Eagles of Romulus and surfaced with a 3-9 league record. It may not seem impressive, however, when you run up against Ann Arbor Pioneer, Ann Arbor Huron, Ypsilanti and Adrian twice in one season, who are noted for their outstanding programs, it's tough.

Daniel managed to hit .317 against SSC pitching.

YOUNG, a utility player for the Eagles, managed to pile up a remarkable .405 batting average. Only a freshman, Andrea will help form the nucleus of a Romulus team that could be a threat for the SCC title for the first time since the school entered the league three years ago.

HAENER, an all-league candidate, was the second leading hitter for the Chiefs at New Boston Huron. She finished with a .368 batting average and also had 15 RBIs on the year.

"She played first flawlessly for us," said Huron Coach Tom Labeau. "She's the kind of athlete who contributes 100 percent all the time."

PINTER, a freshman backstop, will ease the Chiefs' pain of losing such standouts as Lauri Labeau and Haener. She batted .339 and most coaches agree that Jennifer has the talent to develop into one of the best catchers around.

SMITH, Robichaud's lone representative to the elite All-Area team, was the Bulldogs' team captain and a member of the All-City (Dearborn Heights) and all-Suburban Athletic Conference teams.

Honorable Mention

Robichaud
Belleville
Marcy Korgal (third base, junior), Linda Pasek (infield, sophomore)
Romulus
Kim Picciano (catcher, senior), Shannon Dudonis (outfielder, junior), Renee Bitner (pitcher, sophomore).

The team leader, Lisa batted a hefty .430 as a junior. "She is a threat every time she's at the plate," said Robichaud coach Patsy Doty. "Lisa has a lot of potential, and next year I believe she could be the top player in the SAC."

Young athletes eyeing fitness title

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Inkster, which has won the Metropolitan Youth Fitness title at least four times in the past, is considered one of the cities to watch at the annual competitions.

The competitions will be staged July 27 at Lower Huron Metro Park near Belleville.

More than 100 communities are invited to participate in the meet. The young athletes - boys and girls - are tested for their ability to throw the softball, chinning, broad jump, high jump, and running.

Trophies and medals are awarded to the top performers.

Also, for those who qualify in local and regional meets, athletes from Michigan earn a chance to compete in the prestigious Hershey Invitational. Hershey (Pennsylvania) is the home of the famous candy bar manufacturer, sponsors for the national meet.

Inkster captured the Metro

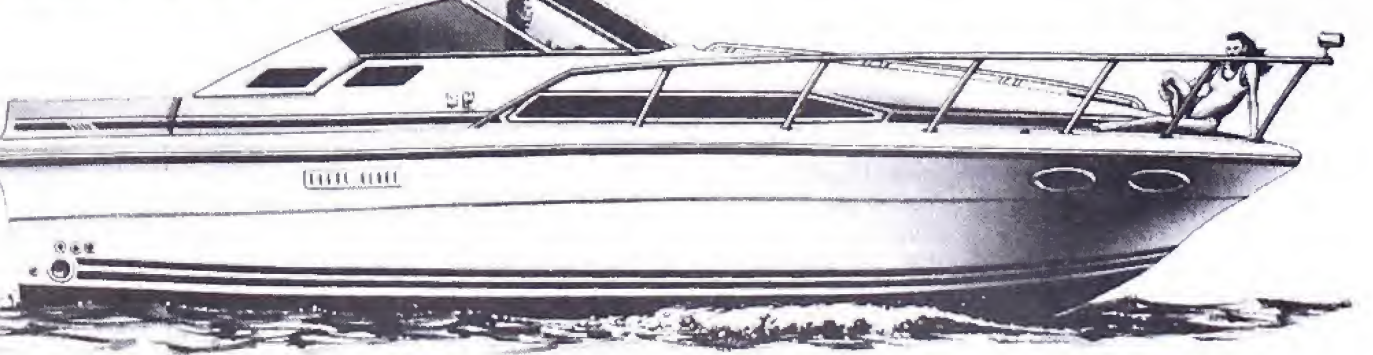

Fitness titles in 1977, 1980, 1986 and 1988. The meet is named for John J. Considine, who had spend much of his life promoting youth fitness and activities in Michigan.

In the meantime, officials at the Inkster parks and recreation department announced the winners of the 1989 Bike Rodeo. Prizes were awarded in three categories: Best decorated, Longest Wheelie and Obstacle Course.

The winners are - Best Obstacle Course: Maurice Davis

(ages 5-8), of 30129 Carlysle, Ernest Goodwin (9-12), of 4543 Meadow Circle, and Joseph Hamilton (13-16), of 29696 Spring Arbor; Longest Wheelie - Darrell O'Neal (5-8), 30266 Carlysle; Michael Williams (9-12), of 3218 Inkster Road; and Reginald Taylor (13-16), of 32071 Pierce.

In the category of Best Decorated, the winners are: Teace Ewing (5-8), 4151 Kenwood; Mallik Hood (9-12), 4509 Meadow Circle; and Alethea Ellis (13-16), 30177 Carlysle.

WHO, ON Elm Street, spent 2 weeks sunning in his yard?

OUR INNER most thoughts and feelings, these are things we usually keep to ourselves but with you I can share all the things I ordinarily wouldn't feel comfortable sharing. I can give a little more of myself, be a little more open, and still know that you'll accept me as I am. I guess that's why the times we spend together are such special times and that's why you will always be someone very special to me.
